DAILY CONSTITUTION.

MONDAY AFTERNOON, MAY 10.

The Loss of the Schiller.

This unfortunate steamship was the last but one to sail under the flag of the broken Eagle line. The line was ushered into existence about two years ago with a capital of sixteen million dollars and bright prospects of success; but mismanagement and the panic had wrecked the hopes of the stockholders. Just as the ill-fated line was to disappear from the commercial lists came the disastrous loss of the Schiller.

The vessel left New York on the 28th ult., crowded with the advance guard of the season's army of tourists; and the predominance of female passengers, both in the cabin and in the steerage, was specially noticed. Of these helpless ones only one was rescued, and of the hundreds all told on board the vessel, only forty-four appear to have been saved. The crew alone numbered one hundred and twenty four.

The ship had crossed the entire ocean when, in the nautical blindness that is often caused by days of fog, she was wrecked on the shoals that surround the Scilly isles. These islands are the fragmentary western end of England. They lie just beyond Land's End, and are the first limits of the English channel. The Schiller was to call at Plymouth, which is only a short distance from where the vessel went to pieces. Thoughts of land, after the weary days at sea, must have been in the hearts of all on board, when the vessel struck.

Seven citizens of Georgia are known to have been on board, and we can only hope that all were not lost in the terrible disaster. Mr. Leonhardt, his wife and little daughter, were on board the ill-fated vessel. Mr. Leonhardt is a well known citizen of Augusta, and a member of the firm of F. A. Brahe & Co. Mr. Maurice Harrison, of Hawkinsville, had built himself a snug home, and was on his way to bring back his bride. Mr. Cohen, of the firm of Eichberg & Cohen, of Montezuma, was called across the water by the apprehended death of his mother. Mr. Herman Spritz, of Macon, and Mr. A. Waterman, of Hawkinsville, were crossing the stormy ferry for the purpose of visiting their friends in the old country. Other Georgia passengers are reported among the passengers of the Schiller; but only the foregoing are known to have sailed. Well may we believe the reports of the associated press that picture the sorrowful scenes at the steamship office in New York in the efforts of the friends of those on board to obtain information. It is hoped that those we have named are not lost, but it is almost hoping against hope. Fuller information will probably come in this night's dispatches.

The Beecher case was adjourned on Friday morning until to-day on account of the absence of counsel. Henry C. Bowen's evidence was concluded on Thursday. The Brooklyn Eagle, in speaking of the probably duration of the trial, says the testimony yet to be introduced on behalf of the plaintiff will, it is expected, be in by Tuesday next. Then the remainder of the week will be taken by counsel for the defendant in placing their last testimony before the jury. Ex-Judge Porter will commence his address on Monday, the 17th instant, and will take the whole of that week in presenting his views of the case. In behalf of the defendant, the address of Mr. Evarts, which will be commenced on Monday, the 23d instant, will probably occupy the remainder of the month and run over into June, and if nothing unforeseen takes place the whole of the summing up, including the address by Mr. Beach on behalf of the plaintiff, will be finished by the end of the first week of next month. Mr. Beach does not expect to take up more than three days in presenting the plaintiff's side of the case to the jury. Then will follow the charge of Judge Neilson, and the deliberation of the jury and the verdict may be looked for about the middle of next month.

Miss Jeanie Patterson read at the Varieties theatre, in New Orleans, last Friday night. The Times, of that city, says that she "was welcomed by a numerous concourse of people, representing the world of intelligence and fashion, and prepared, moreover, to extend to the fair debutante a cheering measure of favor. Among the notable personages in attendance, Mr. Jefferson Davis, who occupied a stage box, was especially noticed."

Augusta is to have another spelling match on Wednesday night; and then her infatuated spellers propose to challenge Atlanta. What temerity! But let 'em come. We will quickly show them that the capital city is supreme in the spelling line. Send in your challenge, and prepare to renounce your absurd pretensions. Atlanta can outspell the world.

The proprietor of the Albany Central City offers the entire outfit, including the good will, for sale on liberal terms. Albany is a prosperous city, and the opening for a newspaper man is undoubtedly a good one.

The streets have been full of rumors of a disastrous storm at Nashville, but we could learn nothing by telegraph of the fact, and are satisfied that the reports are incorrect as to any damage.

ANOTHER FIRE.

Two Dwelling Houses Consumed.

We are called upon to chronicle the fact that our city has again been visited by fire. Between 3 and 4 o'clock this morning, the alarm was given, and though the various fire companies were soon on the ground, and fought manfully, two houses were consumed.

The first building was that of Mr. E. C. Purtell, and the other, that of Mr. Henry Holcomb, the latter being on the adjoining lot to Mr. P.'s, and located at the corner of Harris and Williams streets. These houses are some distance out, and water not convenient to either.

The supposition is that the fire was accidental, and originated from the stove in the kitchen of Mr. Purtell. Mr. P. had been absent from home, and returning, a member of his family kindled a fire in the stove about 10 o'clock and prepared him a supper, leaving the fire burning in the stove when she retired.

Mr. Purtell lost the greater part of his household goods and furniture—his watch, wearing apparel, and the clothing of his children. He had insurance of $1,000 on his house, and $500 on his furniture, with Mr. J. B. Bridges, agent of the Georgia Home.

Mr. Holcomb had just made additions to his house, painted it, &c., at a cost of some $1,800 or $1,900. He succeeded in saving the furniture from two rooms. He also had insured with Mr. Bridges, of the Georgia Home, for $1,900 on his house and furniture.

The Constitution's London Telegrams.

London, May 10.—All day long details of the Schiller disaster have been coming in. Unfortunately no more persons are reported saved; bodies are constantly being picked up. Among the recovered are those of George Leonhardt, Carl Schmidt, Mrs Reiden and child, Mrs. Becker, Mrs. Ridgeway, Mrs. Hermine West and five men, five women and two children. Altogether twenty-four bodies have been found. The total number of lives lost is 311.

Mr. Pollman, second officer of the Schiller, and Henry Stern and Mr. Frahl, first class passengers, have been interviewed.

THEIR NARRATIVES.

We gather that the voyage was moderately good till May 4th. For the last three days it was impossible to take observations. The ship was out of her course half a mile at the time of the catastrophe. Captain Thomas was for four entire days. At seven o'clock in the evening of the 17th, there was

ON DECK NIGHT AND DAY

A DENSE FOG.

The sails were taken in, the engine put on half speed, and fog bells used. Bishop's light was unseen, though only half a mile distant. At 10 o'clock and after four thumps the steamer settled down. There was a violent sea and tide rising.

WE STRUCK ON REEF,

THE DARKNESS WAS INTENSE.

Most of the male passengers were awake, and there was the usual rush for boats, but nearly all boats were stove in. One boat, with a few sailors, left ship.

COWARDLY REFUSED AID.

Two boats were saved. The captain endeavored to compel obedience by firing a revolver over their heads. During two hours six cannon shots were fired, when the powder became damaged.

DISTRESS SIGNALS.

Rockets and blue lights were unanswered. At midnight the fog

LIFTED IN A MINUTE,

revealing light house. The waves sweeping the decks and

CARRYING AWAY VICTIMS.

At two o'clock the deck house, in which were the

WOMEN AND CHILDREN,

was swept away. Cries and shrieks of victims were heartrendering. Then followed a most

GHASTLY SILENCE.

The smoke stack fell, crushing some of the boats, and two others were carried away. The remainder followed the captain to the forward bridge.

EACH SUCCEEDING WAVE TOOK FRESH VICTIMS.

Some persons sought refuge on the main mast, and some on the foremast. At three o'clock the captain and two other officers were on the bridge. The captain stooped for a moment, to render assistance, and he was swept away. Thus died a brave and good man.

Mr. Stern says at this time about ten persons were of the main mast, and thirty to that of foremast. The ship had careened, her yards touching the water, and tide was rising.

At 5 o'clock the fog lifted. Survivors shouted but their

CRIES WERE UNAVAILING.

At seven o'clock the mainmast, and at quarter to eight the foremast, both of iron, fell. Then came and rescued a few who had managed to keep afloat. It was reported yesterday that there were 103 WOMEN ON BOARD.

TWO OF THE ST. AGNES' BOATS

The survivors were taken to-day from Penzance to Plymouth, whence they will be sent forward to Hamburg, where the greatest excitement prevails. It is asserted that life saving belts were issued to the women. It is certain that most of the passengers found none.

An order was issued that the first boat should take women and children. This boat capsized. Poleman says that seven boats were launched and that only two lived. The others were stove in and swamped immediately.

Cries for help lasted until three o'clock.

THE LAST VOICE HEARD WAS THAT OF A LITTLE CHILD

in the cabin. It is not probable that boats could have lived, even if they had been successfully filled. The whole NUMBER SAVED IS 44.

Forty bodies have been recovered. Mr. Dorrien Smith, of the Scilly Islands, writes to the Times that many additional lives were lost, because guns and rockets fired from the Schiller were thought to be merely ordinary signals of arrival, which have frequently been the cause of false alarms. Among the bodies rescued and already identified are those of

GEO. LEONHARDT,

Rowne Leurchne, Andre Peterson, C. Schmidt, Mrs. Reiderer and daughter, Mrs. Becker, Mrs. Ridgeway and Mrs. West. Fifty corpses from the Schiller have come ashore or been landed at St. Marys alone.

THE DEAD ARE MUCH MUTILATED.

Fifty-six mail bags, including twenty-seven from New Zealand, were saved from the Schiller. The steamer Pomerania sailed from Plymouth during the night for Hamburg without any survivors of the Schiller. The statements made by the officers of the Schiller add nothing to the particulars already telegraphed. All accounts agree that the panic which followed was beyond description.

HEART RENDING AND TERRIBLE

London, May 10.—The sea is too heavy to-day for boats to approach the wreck of the steamship Schiller; no floating salvage of any importance has yet been recovered. Fishermen report that the Schiller is and will not fall off into deep water. Although it is difficult to approach the wreck now there will be many days in summer when salvage may be effected. There was a life belt in every one of the Schiller's berths when the disaster occurred. The captain issued orders that one should be fastened to every woman, this was done but the women were drowned by the heavy sea.

Steamship Cadiz was lost near Biest while on a voyage from Lisbon to this city. 160 persons were drowned.

SUNDAY'S DISPATCHES.

[By Telegraph to The Constitution.]

London, May 9.—Forty-three survivors of the crew and passengers of the steamer Schiller have arrived at Penzance, of these 33 have gone to Plymouth, the remaining ten are too ill to be moved. The following additional particulars of the disaster have been received: A heavy fog prevented observations on board the Schiller since Tuesday. In consequence of the fog the engines were put on half speed and sail was reduced at 9 o'clock Friday night. At 10 o'clock the same night the ship struck the ledge and a great panic prevailed. Captain Thomas is highly praised for his conduct during the terrible scenes which followed. Two boats were filled with men who refused to come out. The captain fired his revolver over their heads to drive them out and then fired at them, but without effect. Afterwards the ship was washed with her broadside to the sea and all on board of these boats perished. The tackle at the stern was released too soon, leaving the boats suspended by the bows. Three boats then got away, one of them, a life boat, was so badly injured that she sunk, and eleven of the people on board of her were rescued by the other boats. The fog lifted an hour after the steamer struck, and the lights were plainly visible.

Two of the boats on the steamer were crushed by the falling of the funnel rockets, and guns were fired from the steamer until the powder became wet. The deck house, crowded with people was swept away at 2 A. M. The captain gathered some of the survivors on the bridge, and all was gradually swept away by the flood-tide, which took the captain and doctor last. The rigging which remained above water was crowded with passengers and the crew all night. The main mast fell at 7:30 A. M., and being of iron, sunk with all who had taken refuge on it. The foremast gave way soon after. Life belts and wreck stuff saved the lives of some, who drifted miles away. One man was rescued after being in the water ten hours. Two boats from St. Agnes arrived a short time before the masts fell. They were unable to approach the steamer on account of shoals, but picked up stragglers in the water.

The passengers say that Capt. Thomas left the bridge at 3 A. M. to assist those on the deck, and when he reached the deck was swept away by a heavy sea. All concur in saying that he exercised the greatest care and was not a bed for five nights previous to the disaster. The sea began to break over the vessel half an hour after she struck, and the tide rose 25 feet before daybreak. Only one woman was saved. The survivors landed at Trescon. They escaped in the Schiller's own boats.

A cable dispatch received by the agent of the Eagle line this morning gives the following corrected list of passengers so far known to be saved from the steamer Schiller: Leo Weste, Kervey Starrs, John Joens, Mrs. Joens, Jean Renk, S. Hexter, C. Frahen, Carl Kuhn, Marcus Powitzer, R. Schillenburg, C. Sansen, Richard Williams, Joseph Degenor. The latter name the agent state is not in their list of passengers.

AMERICAN GIRLS.

What They are Doing in a Useful Way, and What They are Capable of Doing

* * * At present how narrow is the limit of occupation for women! A hundred or two may be studying music in Europe, hoping to find a fortune in their voices. Most of them will fail. Perhaps a hundred or two are studying art in New York and elsewhere. In this field, those who are willing to make the exertion, may win fame and a competence. Many women have become telegraph operators, and a few are book-keepers, while hundreds are clerks. All this is well. Much better than running sewing machines. Scrubbing basement steps and going to market. A few women have proved themselves good editors, and others will, in time to come. For the matter of poetry and general literature, women have long been the peers of men. Many women earn a good living on the stage, a work as honorable for them as it is for men. But after all is said and done, the majority of women have nothing better to do than to dress prettily, read books, play on pianos, and entertain company. When we say the masses, we mean, of course, those who are above want, and are not forced to toil from morning until night to earn a living. There are a plenty of hard working women in America, we all know; those who have to endure as much physical fatigue as criminals in the galleys. These, for the moment, we are not considering.

To what end is all this reading of books, learning of modern languages, culture in music, and traveling over the world? That some husband may be entertained when weary of his ledgers; that fairy stories may be translated from the German for the children in the nursery; that the piano may be played on occasion, or a sketh drawn now and then? These accomplishments are not to be altogether despised, if they have not been acquired at the expense of more practical and useful knowledge. It is to be feared, however, that the practice is too often forgotten in the education of our girls. Mr. George Dawson, of Birmingham, Eng., when in this country visited our common schools. At a high school in Philadelphia, he found six hundred girls in one room, and they "were in the middle of the life and characteristics of Lord Byron." In how many schools in England would it be any use asking the girls about Lord Byron? They would say that they never heard of the gentleman. Other girls, at home, content themselves with "beginning little scraps of canvass or kid which they produce when company is present." If the sum total of their lives should be ascertained, it would frequently represent a certain sum of money spent at the milliners, the dressmakers, for music, hotel bills, balls, and traveling. Were a man to lead such a life it would be considered mis-spent. He would lament it more than Mr. Greville does at the close of those remarkable memoirs, which account for the vain and riotous living of kings, queens, and of persons of high rank. We can hardly expect to prosper as a people in any good and earnest direction, so long as one half of mankind are doomed to the almost useless lives which prevail among the American women of the better class to-day. In this land of freedom and opportunity every girl should be educated with a definite object in view. If, in after life, she has no occasion to practice her trade or profession, it will at least be some consolation to know that she is independent of the "slings and venoms of outrageous fortune."

THE PRISMOIDAL ROAD.

An Experimental Test of the New Railway System.

[From the Houston (Texas) Telegraph.]

A number of persons were attracted yesterday across the Bayou to see the running of a locomotive and car over the section of Prismoidal track that has been laid near the central depot. Many trips backward and forward were successfully made, with the car full of passengers. In the morning a committee composed of prominent citizens of Hockley, having in consideration the adoption of the Prismoidal system for the projected railway between Hockley and the Central, examined the track and took a ride in the car. The committee were well pleased, and decided, we are informed, to adopt the system. In the afternoon a free ride was given to a number of Houstonians and the members of the press. It is claimed by the advocates of the system, that the Prismoidal railway can be built and equipped for the moderate sum of $6,000 per mile; that it obviates the necessity of grading; that the quantity of iron and lumber required is very much less than that necessary to the ordinary railway; that much greater rapidity can be attained by it than by the other; and that the proportion of freight carried to dead weight is far greater than can be carried on the double-track system. It is said to carry three tons of freight to every one ton of dead weight. The track, as the name implies, is in the form of a prism, over the top of which a sheathing of iron is placed. The apex of the sheathing is shaped like a T rail. The sheathing is made in one piece to weigh, it is said, eighteen pounds to the foot. The driving wheel of the locomotive stands under the center of the boiler, and runs over the flat surface of the T rail. A small wheel inclined from the horizontal at an angle of thirty degrees, runs just below the flange of the T on either side, and serves to steady the track. A larger wheel, also at an inclination, runs about a foot below on either side of the slope or the prism. The object of this is to keep the truck in an upright position. In running there is a slight rocking from side to side, but comparatively little jolting. Many railroad men witnessed the performance of the engine, yesterday, and some were confident that success would crown the system.

How Charlotte Cushman was Saved from Drowning Fifty Years Ago.

[Easton Advocate.]

More than fifty years ago a boy some 16 or 17 years of age was at work one afternoon on the old Hingham Station packet, which will be remembered by some of our citizens as for years occupying a berth at the head of the dock where State street block now stands.

It was an afternoon when there was no school, and a girl, somewhat younger than the boy alluded to, was passing the holiday in play near the store of her father. Venturing too near the edge of the dock she missed her footing and fell overboard, and it being high water at the time she disappeared. No one saw her fall, but by accident the boy noticed some bubbles in the water, and having just before seen the little miss on the wharf, instantly took in the situation. Springing into the water he succeeded in bringing her to the surface, and calling for aid she was taken on shore and restored to her parent.

This act of heroism saved the life of one who has become the most distinguished American actress of the age—a lady as highly respected for her moral worth and irreproachable private character as she is renowned all over the world for her eminent histrionic achievements. Her rescuer is to day one of our most estimable citizens, and less than a year ago acquainted the lady with the circumstances of her deliverance from a watery grave through his instrumentality—a fact she well remembered, although till then ignorant of the name of her preserver. Cornelius Lovell had saved the life of Charlotte Cushman.

DAILY CONSTITUTION.

ATLANTA.

Tuesday Morning, May 11, 1875.

ITS LARGEST CIRCULATION CITY, COUNTY AND STATE.

DEFIES REFUTATION.

General Traveling Agents:
T. M. ACTON. B. H. PARKS

A LARGE number of the revised statutes of Colorado, printed in Spanish, are being shipped to the southern counties of the territory.

THE New Hampshire legislature, with the exception of the United States house of representatives, is the largest legislative body in the union.

JAY COOK'S splendid country seat, "Ogontz," near Philadelphia, is to be sold at public sale on the 25th inst. The place has cost Mr. Cook $1,000,000.

THE carpet-bag of Niles G. Parker, late treasurer of South Carolina, is supposed to have cost the state about $225,000. The people ought to be thankful that he didn't bring his trunk.—St. Louis Times.

THE republicans of Main have decided to hold their state convention at Portland, on June 15. General Seldon Connor will in all probability be their nominee for governor.

THE Detroit Free Press says: "Our Henry" is thus advertised in a Massachusetts paper: "Strayed or stolen—a vice-president. When last heard from he was hobnobbing with John C. Breckinridge."

THE Cincinnati Price current sees little prospect that we shall ever again have a supply of coffee at as low prices as prevailed before the war, on account of the demoralization of labor in Brazil, caused by the abolition of slavery.

OF the Mennonites who emigrated from Russia to this country—6,356 in all—2,980 have settled in southern Kansas. Of the remainder, 1,000 went to Dakota, 750 remained in the eastern states, 400 selected dwelling-places in Nebraska, and seventy-five chose Minnesota.

IN reply to an invitation to attend the centennial, General Garibaldi has sent an autograph letter in which he says: "I will certainly make every possible effort to have my country participate in the magnificent celebration which is to be held in Philadelphia. I deeply regret that I shall not be able to attend myself."

THE Harrisburg Patriot says: Grant has thrown away all chance of getting a third-term indorsement in Penesylvania. Taking another member of his cabinet from New York, and slighting the state which carried for him by a most expensive and elaborate fraud in 1872, is a measure of ingratitude which the profoundest loyalty cannot overlook.

FROM June 20, 1874, to April 1, 1875, the old national banks have voluntarily resigned seventeen million two hundred and ninety-six thousand thirty-seven dollars of their circulation, by depositing greenbacks with the comptroller. After allowing for the new banks organized, with the eighty per cent. of greenbacks retired under the law of January 14, 1875, the New York Tribune estimates the net contraction of the currency since last June at twelve million dollars.

Courier-Journal: On the whole, Murat Halstead's scheme of a third-party movement, looking to nominate Charles Francis Adams for president, and by getting him early in the field to force the regular republicans to take him just as the democrats were forced to take Horace Greeley, does not strike us. That scheme cannot be executed twice and on different political sects. It failed badly in '72, and it will fail worse in '76. Still there is much true inwardness in it, and true inwardness is a great thing.

A LONDON dispatch states that the Chinese government has secured the services of ex-Confederate general Ripley to construct fortifications on the coasts and rivers of that country. The Chinese are evidently impressed with the advantages which have occurred to Japan from courting foreign talent, and are becoming sensible of their own deficiencies. American officers are in demand. The Khedive of Egypt is getting as many of them around him as he can, and a field is open in China for the same talent. We will next hear of the introduction of improved fire-arms in the Chinese army and better discipline, which will enable them to grapple successfully with the 20,000 Formosan savages who have given them so much trouble.

THE particulars of the grand eruption of the mountain called Trollandynjav, in the north of Iceland, have been received. The eruption occurred in December last, and was preceded by earthquakes. The weather during the month was very foggy, and the flames from the burning mountain could not be seen to advantage until the 2d of January, when the sight presented was magnificent. Columns of fire and stones were shot straight up into the air to a great height, and fell back into the crater in so narrow a circumference that the formation of new lava only extended 12 miles from northwest to southeast. An exploring party state that from the side of the ravine, at a point as near as they could get for the burning lava, they could see down through the volcanic fissure lurid flames like vast reeking rivers of fire playing in wild confusion among "the wreck of matter." Fortunately, no damage was done either by the earthquake or the eruption.

One Hundred Years Ago.

We are fairly in the midst of the centennial period. The battles of Concord and Lexington were duly celebrated; the capture of Ticonderoga was commemorated yesterday by a celebration on the spot, and just ahead are the grander celebrations of the Mecklenburg declaration of independence, and of the battle of Bunker Hill. During the next eight years there will be a series of similar celebrations, as fast as the one hundredth anniversary of each particular battle, skirmish or other historical event comes around. And what harm is there in all this patriotic jubilation? A little too much rum may be imbibed by some of the patriots, and perhaps blood will be drawn from pummelled noses on not a few of the old fields; but in the main, the people will come out of them in a healthier frame of mind. Enough patriotism may possibly be evoked to make those who persist in fighting the war over ashamed of their actions. The bloody chasm may in real truth be bridged, and the country become thoroughly reunited. If the centennial orators will pitch their thoughts in General Bartlett's key, all will be well, and we will emerge from the centennials a prosperous, happy and invincible people. But justice must be done. We believe the signs of the times are auspicious, and that the worst days have passed.

While the people of other sections are actively engaged in celebrating the acts of their illustrious ancestors, the people of Georgia are inactive. And yet many important events occurred in the state in 1775. The continental congress met on the 10th of May, 1775. On the 13th, or one hundred years ago on next Thursday, Dr. Lyman Hall presented to that body his credentials as deputy from the parish of St. John's, Georgia, accompanied by an address from his constituents, containing a brief summary of their proceedings. Next Thursday may, therefore, be properly regarded as the hundredth anniversary of Georgia's revolutionary career, although Dr. Hall was elected to represent the parish several weeks before. At that time the state, or rather the province, contained but 17,000 whites and 15,000 blacks.

The first battle in Georgia was fought on the 11th of May, or one hundred years ago to-day. It was a bloodless battle. Five hundred pounds of powder [illegible] taken from the King's magazine at Savannah. Tradition asserts that part of this powder was sent to Boston and used by the militia at the battle of Bunker Hill.

On the 5th of June, 1775, the first liberty pole was erected in Georgia, and the first naval capture of the revolution was made by a Georgia schooner, on the 10th of June, 1775.

It is useless to follow the various efforts of the brave men in the province of Georgia, all of which directly led to an united effort against the oppressor. Then it was not St. John's parish alone that protested against the acts of the mother country, but the whole state spoke with one voice, and that voice was for liberty.

It seems to us that a general centennial celebration of the adoption of the first constitution would not be inappropriate. This would not occur until February, 1877; and by that time we will have reason to rejoice in the overthrow of another baleful power that has robbed and wronged the state more than the British ever did. Both events can be celebrated at one time.

Contributions for the Tornado Sufferers.

We are glad to acknowledge the receipt of additional donations to the sufferers by the last tornado:

From Dr. J. M. Johnson $5.

From Y. M. C. A., Newnan, $3.

From Presbyterian Sunday school at Decatur, through Treasurer Ramspeck, $38 45. Nobly done for this Sunday school.

Of the first contributions we have sent $25 to the ordinary of Harris county, and $17 to Henry county. We shall forward other amounts to-day.

It is not possible to do too much in this pressing charity, for it must be remembered that these desolated people, many of them at least, will be unable to make crops this year. We shall be happy to receive and forward all contributions from twenty-five cents up, either from individuals or scholars.

THE executive committee of the Mecklenburg centennial celebration have ordered from the Philadelphia mint two thousand silver medals to commemorate the historical event. In size and value one of these medals will be equal to the silver half dollar pieces. Its design and finish are very creditable. On one side is a hornet's nest, which is typical of the announcement by the king's officers that Mecklenburg was a hornet's nest of rebels. On the same side is also a liberty-cap surrounded by the rays of the rising sun. Beneath are two clasped hands, which are typical of the united north and south at the close of the last war. On the reverse side within a circle are the inscriptions, "May 20th, 1775, and May 20th, 1875—Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence."

THE college of bishops of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, have completed their plan of episcopal visitations for the ensuing twelve months. Bishop Keener will preside over the north Georgia conference, which meets at Griffin, December 1; and Bishop Doggett over the south Georgia conference, that meets at Americus, December 15. Bishop Pierce's appointments are all in Texas but one, and that is in the Indian territory.

SPAIN is a prompt paymaster, at least so far as the Virginius indemnity is concerned. The entire sum of $80,000 has been paid to Mr. Cushing in Madrid, although much of it was not due in several months. As soon as Mr. Cushing remits, and the government distributes the money, less the extortions of the Washington lobbyists, we shall hear the last of the Virginius massacre, which has been settled in paltry dollars.

THE whole western part of Missouri is alive with grasshoppers, and the farmers of that rich agricultural section are greatly discouraged. If the ravages of the grasshopper become extensive, and they certainly promise to be, the men in Georgia who have full cribs of corn next winter will be the men who have a right to congratulate themselves on their good sense and foresight.

THE sales of Columbus during the first quarter of the present year aggregate $1,321,619, or about four hundred thousand dollars less than those of the corresponding quarter in 1874. This diminution simply shows the change in values, and retrenchment and the return to a cash system. Columbus retains her trade intact.

THE appoinment of ex-Senator Pratt to the office of commisioner of internal revenue is a stepping stone, it is said, to a further promotion. Mr. Delano must soon step down, and out among his numberless speculations, taking with him his more famous son John. In that event, Mr. Pratt will step into his shoes.

SENATOR MATT. RANSOM, North Carolina's favorite representative, will read the Mecklenburg declaration at the approaching centennial celebration in Charlotte. A vast concourse of people will be present, but the preparations for their reception are on a corresponding scale.

THE Wadesboro', North Carolina, Gazette, contains sketches of the pall-bearers of John C. Calhoun. Jefferson Davis is the only one of the distinguished number who is living.

HON. B. H. HILL addresses the people of Atlanta to-night at the capitol. It is a rally of his Fulton county supporters.

MR. HILL AT ATHENS.

Editors Constitution: By request, Mr. Hill addressed a large and intelligent audience, composed of both ladies and gentlemen, both black and white voters, from the balcony of the Newton House at 8:30 o'clock Saturday night.

The great orator made one of his best efforts and for more than an hour completely enchained his audience.

He commenced by alluding to his past twenty years record of political life, and solemnly declared that he had, during all of that time, had solely in view the interests of the people. He expressed his gratitude to the voters of the ninth district for the flattering support they had given him, and pledged himself that they should not repent it. He alluded specially to the solid colored vote he had received in three counties, an unprecedented occurrence in the experience of any southern democrat since the war, and gave the crowd of colored men gathered beneath him some most excellent advice. He assured them that the support they had given him would strengthen his hands in congress and spike the guns of his radical foes. I cannot write too highly of this portion of Mr. Hill's address. It was wise, eloquent, and produced a powerful effect upon the negroes, whose earnest faces upturned to the speaker exhibited its influence upon them in every feature. He then proceeded to map out his course in congress, which should have for its great end the establishment and maintenance of permanent peace between the sections, without sacrifice of self-respect.

The address was heartily received and warmly applauded. A band of music preceded and succeeded him, and then the Clark county voters of the ninth district went to sleep and slept the sleep of the just. OCCASIONAL.

Ben Hill's Old Home Rejoicing.

A BIG MEETING AND ITS RESOLUTIONS.

LAGRANGE, May 8, 1875.

A "rousing" and enthusiastic meeting of all our citizens was held to-night in the court house to publicly express their gratification and their thanks to the stalwart democrats of the glorious ninth district at the fortunate occurrence of the election of our former beloved townsman, Hon. B. H. Hill, to represent the south in the halls of our federal legislature.

Upon motion of T. C. Crenshaw, Dr. J. A. Long was called to the chair, and J. W. Chapman, of the Reporter, was requested to act as secretary, and Isaac Wise, assistant.

Mr. W. F. Findley, editor of the Gainesville Southron, who battled so manfully for our distinguished stateman, was by invitation with us, and was escorted to a chair beside the president.

On motion a committee consisting of Col. J. M. Beall, Thomas H. Whitaker, A. H. Cox and T. C. Crenshaw were appointed to report suitable resolutions for the action of the meeting and the following were reported:

"There are occasions recurring in the history of our times, when it is becoming to give expression of our gratification at the result thereof. Such an occasion has transpired in the issue of the congressional election in the ninth district, in the election of Hon. B. H. Hill. This to us who have long known him, and among whom he lived during his young manhood, is an event of heartfelt rejoicing.

The acknowledged ability, the power in debate, the eloquence in speech and wisdom in legislation, conceded to him by his enemies and claimed for him by his friends, assures us that in the Hon. B. H. Hill we shall have in the hall of congress one equal to any emergency for the best interest of our people. We rejoice that an appreciative people have risen in their manhood and said here is a representative you need for the times—a statesman of whom Georgia may well feel proud.

Therefore, be it

Resolved, That we hereby tender our unqualified thanks to the people of the ninth congressional district for the election of Benj. H. Hill as their special and our general representative in congress.

Be it further resolved, that by their action they have given assurance that they are governed by no petty jealousies but by a grand broad high appreciation of eminent fitness and superior ability in their choice of representative in the person of Hon. B. H. Hill, for which we now commingle our rejoicing with their own.

Resolved that copies of these resolutions be furnished the Gainsville Southron, THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION and Herald and the Lagrange Reporter for publication.

A resolution of welcome to our visitor, Mr. Findley, and thanks for his successful championship of the cause of our "Hampden of America" and as the ally of the "immortal twenty eight" in the Gainesville convention, was offered.

Mr. Findley arose, was introduced by Dr. Long, and addressed the meeting in a happy style and with frequent allusion to the great Georgian, which were loudly applauded.

In response to vociferous calls, spirited and entertaining speeches were made by Dr. Long, Col. C. Mabry, Albert Cox, Thos. H. Whitaker and W. H. Turner, esqs.

This was pronounced the joyous meeting of the age. Among the thousand present were many of those well-known, beautiful and appreciative ladies, and the fair, attractive pupils of the Southern Female college, but all under the escort of Prof. J. F. Cox.

With a rising vote and three deafening cheers for Hon. B. H. Hill, the resolution and supplemental resolution to Mr. Findley were adopted. The meeting adjourned, when Thomas Whitaker "got up" cheers [illegible] Rucker, of Athens, for their "big, little fight" in behalf of the country.

Nor was this all, for in secret conclave the veterans and young heroes met where Bacchus had been invited, and then there was discussed "Who had or would get the floor? who should use the wagon going home? who should pull it? what speaker had hid behind the court-house door? who had the best mouth for speaking? who should "set" at the next coroner's inquest? And after deciding what excuse the married martyrs should give for their late "being out," this crowd dispersed and retired among the "spirits." "This calls for a response from NOTE TAKER."

Official Vote of Fania County.

A SOMEWHAT SARCASTIC LETTER.

MORGANTON, GA., May 6, 1875.

Editors Constitution:—The election in Fannin county for member to congress in the 9th district having passed off quietly yesterday, I have concluded to give you a synopsis of the result, and ask you to publish it in your columns, being a paper of a fine circulation, and published at a locality that seems to have had a great deal of interest in our welfare in the 9th district, and as well as an interest in the welfare of the whole country. And doubtless if it had not been the latter consideration, the more extended and patriotic view of the subject the less local, to-wit: The whole country, to the south, east and west pointed out B. H. Hill as the only and most suitable man to represent us in congress, the people of your locality would have felt less interested in the matter than they did. But so it is, from some motive or other your people have shown an interest, and it is but natural that your paper itself should take one side or other in such a vast contest, and publish something or other that tended to advance the claims of this or that aspirant. It is not to be wondered at, especially since editors, like all others, are subject to surrounding influences, and they see, feel and know that the country stands so much in need of great men, without whose services the country must be ruined. But I am digressing. The point I started out to give—the vote on yesterday. Col. J. B. Estes 62; Col. W. P. Price 42; the Hon. B. H. Hill 8, with a few scattering votes to others. This result is not exactly in keeping with the advice of your paper, nor with the views of others outside our district. But still it is very common and natural for men to differ, and especially when trying to manage their own business they are more apt to differ with such as seem to be intermeddling in other men's business, in which they ought to be a little less concerned, and having less interest and not supposed to know as much about other men's business as they ought to know about their own. Being a subscriber to THE CONSTITUTION I send this short letter for publication. Respectfully,

A VOTER.

THE OUTSIDE PRESS ON BEN HILL'S ELECTION.

[Cincinnati Enquirer.]

B. H. Hill has been elected to congress from the ninth Georgia district. Another ex-rebel general.

[New York Tribune.]

Unless appearances are very deceptive, General B. H. Hill will be the next congressman from the ninth Georgia district. Contractors should send in their bids for the strong iron screen to be placed between General Hill and Mr. Alexander H. Stephens in the house of representatives.

[Memphis Avalanche.]

The election of Hon. Ben Hill to congress from the North Georgia district—announced yesterday—will add to the national legislature another strong men from the south. He is a very able lawyer and speaker, and has always been a Union man.

[Cincinnati Enquirer.]

In the election of General Ben Hill, of the ninth district of Georgia to congress, the democracy have a large reinforcement of brains in that body. General Hill is, without doubt, the ablest debater south of Mason and Dixon's line, and he has no superior north of it.

[Wilmington, N. C., Journal.]

Outside of the district in the state, and indeed throughout the entire south, the election of Mr. Hill was desired. The next session of congress will have a material weight in shaping the presidential campaign and in determining the result. The south, especially at this time, requires in congress, her ablest statesmen. And while Mr. Hill has many enemies in his state, none deny that he possesses transcendant abilities, and is probably the best orator in the United States. His speeches in congress will claim the attention of the whole country, and he will add strength to the able representatives who already honor southern constituencies, and are again placing the south in its proper position in the councils of the country.

SPEAKS TO-NIGHT IN ATLANTA.

A letter addressed to Mr. Hill by a committee was answered by Mr. Hill, promising to speak to-night at the capitol.

EUROPE.

Meeting of the Emperors—Will there be Peace?—Death of the Sporting Parson.

[By Telegraph to The Constitution.]

LONDON, May 10.—In this morning's Telegraph there was an editorial article on the meeting of the emperors of Russia and Germany. To-day it says it is impossible to conceal the truth the continental situation wears this morning the very gravest aspect. If we were to say that the question of the future repose of Europe may be practically solved before forty-eight hours have passed we would scarcely go beyond the facts. The tendency at this hour is decidedly pacific. Other London journals like wise comment upon the meeting, but the thought of war is generally discredited.

Its reported from Paris that the French government positively contradicts the assertion that Germany has recently made representations of a hostile tendency. The same dispatch contains the statement, believed to be semi official, that no cause of conflict exists between Germany and France, and that advices from all the capitals of Europe are of the same tenor, that pacific ideas are every where in the accendant.

Rev. John King of Aspley De la Launde, in Lincolnshire, is dead. King, under the assumed name of Mr. Launde, was widely known as the owner of racing stock, notably of Apology, the winner of the Oaks, one thousand guineas and St. Leger stakes of 1874, and of the Holy Friar, one of the favorites for Derby of 1875. Holy Friar thus becomes disqualified of running for Derby. All bets on him are rendered void.

An Authors' Consultation.

(By Telegraph to the Constitution.)

LONDON, May 10.—A deputation of authors waited on Mr. Disraeli to-day to make representations and obtain his views in regard to international copy right. The deputation consisted of Messrs. Blanchard Jerrold, Tom Taylor, Chas. Reade, Chas. Dickens, G. A. Sala, Chas. Mackey, Miss Braddon, Mrs. Wood and many others, well known literary persons. Mr. Edward Jenkins, a member of the parliament for Dundee, and author of "Ginxs Baby," addressed Disraeli on the part of the deputation. He pointed to the appropriation and mutilation of the works of British authors by the book publishers of the United States, and asked if some remedy could not be found for the grievances. Mr. Disraeli replied that the subject had already came before the government on the question whether a revision of the copyright law in regard to dramas was desirable. The government would give the matter full attention, and strive to remove the annoyances and vexations now existing, but it must have time to consider what method to adopt. He was of the opinion that royal commission would be better than a committee of house of commons, because it would be more likely to be well acquainted with the subject.

SOUTHERN BAPTIST CONVENTION.

Richmond, Va., Place of Next Meeting.

[Special Telegram to the Constitution.]

CHARLESTON, S. C., May 10.

The reports were all adopted, and the convention adjourned at 4 p. m., after a harmonious session.

Dr. Sumner's resignation was received, and Dr. Basil Manly was elected his successor.

The convention meets next at Richmond, Va. W. O. T.

[Associated Press Dispatch.]

CHARLESTON, May 10.—The Southern Baptist convention adjourned sine die today. The session of eight hours was occupied mainly by the reception of committee reports, which were the subject of long and spirited discussion. The committee on a new board received the resignation of Dr. M. I. Sumner as corresponding secretary of the home mission board, and nominated Dr. Basil Manly, of Kentucky, as his successor. The report of the committee gave rise to much debate, but was finally accepted. The remaining officers of the board were re-elected, and the foreign mission board was re-elected without change.

"SPEAKING O' CORNS."

The Chiropodist Wrestles with a Champion Excrescence.

[From the Rochester Democrat.]

"Speaking o' corns," said a chiropodist, who had applied to us for a job in his particular line, the other day, "I runs acrost some very extraordinary ones occasionally. Medina hes got some pretty sizeable ones, I'll admit; but nothin' like what they has in Brockport. I stopped there a week ago last Friday, and advertised to take out corns and bunions at the reg'lar rates, and it came very near bein' the ruination of me. I got hold o' sev'ral tough cases there, I tell ye. There was two which I took off'n one feller as I've have turned into terbacker boxes, and they'll either one of 'em hold enough to last a moderate chawer a week. I should'nt a minded these so much but one feller came along and wanted me to go with him to his house, and do the job in a private, like manner. There'l just where I got sucked in and lost money. I noticed this fellow had remarkable mud-crushers, but when he got his boots off his feet kinder expanded like, and on makin' a diagnoseous of his case I found that in the first place I didn't have pennyryal ile enough to soak up the corn with, and my instruments was too little for the operation. I thought, awhile, and then concluded to try kerosene ile, so I ordered a barrel of the article to be sent up to the house. For an instrument I procured the use of a sythe, and by calling in some of the neighbors with crowbars and an axe, we finally got the pesky concern started around the roots. Then of all the pullin', and haulin', and sweatin', and gruntin', and tugin', and liftin', and yee hawn' you ever seen or heard of we yeehawed. Must ha' been we worked twelve hours on that 'ere corn, and when we did finally get it loose we had to tip it up on one edge to roll it out of doors. Of course, I couldn't very well charge over twenty-five cents for the job, as long as I'd advertised as I did, but the fellow made me a present of the excrescence, and I got a cartman and we loaded it up and drawed it to the depot. From there I shipped it to New York, where it will be made into hair-combs and mouth-pieces for meerschaum pipes. These fellers down in New York will make a good speculation out of it, but, countin' in lost time, I shan't make a cent."

"How was business in Albion?" we inquired.

"O, I didn't stop there at all," said the corn doctor. "Folks there told me that although Brockport probably had twice as many corns as they had in Albion, that they couldn't boast of any half so big; and besides. Albion corns weren't hard enough to work up well into combs, knife handles and such like. So I skipped by Alonbi, and dropped off here at Medina."

A Happy Prince.

[Lucy Hooper's Paris Letter.]

I am told that the Duke of Edinburgh has settled down into a model husband and father, having sown all his wild oats, and showing no disposition to recommence that unprofitable act of husbandry. It is said that he passes hours in playing with his little son and in the company of the Duchess. As the royal family of England have refused to yield to the Grand Duchess in the matter of precedence, and still insist on her yielding the pass to the Princess Beatrice on all public occasions, Her Royal and Imperial Highness appears at court ceremonials and festivities as seldom as possible, and leads a life of much more quiet and domesticity than usually falls to the lot of married princes. I am told that she is the most highly educated and accomplished lady at the English court, though her manners lack the grace and sweetness, and her person the beauty which distinguished the lovely Princess of Wales.

An Ohio Tornado.

(By Telegraph to the Constitution.)

GREEN SPRINGS, O., May 10.—Two houses and every chimney prostrated. Two children killed by a tornado storm from south to north nearly two miles.

Two travellers from distant parts of the country met the other day at a hotel in Philadelphia, and one proposing a visit to Laurel Hill the other accompanied him. "I had, in fact, no other object in stopping in the city," said the first, "than to find a grave in this cemetery." "You have a kinsman buried here?" "more than that—the best friend I ever had. A queer old fellow, a Quaker merchant, in whose house I was an errand-boy. He took a fancy to me, educated me liberally, set me up in business in New Orleans, and as long as he lived never ceased to watch over me with the care and tenderness of a father." The man's voice began to grow husky and his eyes wet. "I tell you," he said, "God has left some genuine salt in the world. When I think how many people are the better and happier because that man has lived; when I remember the slaves whom he helped to free, the asylums that he founded, the strait economy and lavish alms-giving of home, I actually feel, sir, as if this ground under our feet was made holy because his old body lies in it." They were walking then through the dusky alleys of the cemetery. His companion was silent from sympathy a few moments. "I never knew but one Philadelphian," he said, presently, "and he is dead. A Quaker, too—sugar importer. Used to transact a good deal of business with our firm in New York—the very closest, sharpest man in a bargain I ever knew—a very steel-trap of a man—would argue an hour about a penny. An implicable old Shylock, too. There was young Graves, a fast young fellow, who cheated him of a few dollars. Well, he pushed that matter inexorably, in spite of all we could do. Graves was the only son of his mother, too and she a widow. Justice! Justice! —that was his cry until he sent the lad to Sing-Sing and to perdition. But, luckily, the old man's dead now. Hillo! here's his grave, and a marble shaft over him!" "I raised that over my benefactor," said his friend.—Rebecca Harding Davis, in Scribner's for May.

The Michigan Humorist.

Mr. Lewis is about five feet eight inches in height, with a frame of medium size, and weighs about 140. He has brown hair, cut rather short and carelessly kept, and wears brown moustaches. His eyes are blue-gray, and the upper part of his face is intellectual and attractive. His forehead is handsome, square, and well defined generally, and the perceptive faculties are, a phrenologist would say, especially well developed. His eyes are wide open, pleasant, and honest; nose rather prominent, straight, and with good lines from root to tip, except that the extreme end has a trifle too much flesh; chin heavier and stronger than would naturally be looked for, and this effect is heightened by extra long jaw bones and a thin face. His voice is pitched above the average key, and is also slightly husky, but is pleasant to the ear, for he speaks quietly. He wears a beaver hat that brings to mind the signs that used to hang out in Park row, "We block your hat while you wait for fifty cents." On the street his hat looks as though he had put it on the back of his head at an angle of about fifteen degrees from the line of his face, and then somebody behind him had struck with a mallet a playful blow on the crown. In manner, Mr. Lewis is gentle, kindly, and pleasant. He has a wife and two children.

"An hour in the Central Station court" is a caption familiar to newspaper readers. There 'Bijah first saw the light, and there Justice still sits dispensing quaint wisdom on manifold topics and sentences to the workhouse with equal profusion and promiscuousness. It is not what New Yorkers would expect from its title, solely a police bureau, the headquarters of the police general and his staff, but it is a station house as well, and draws its distinguished appellation from its locality. It is on Woodbridge street near the river, and consequently near to the lower haunts of the city. The public room of the station is about forty by fifteen, and lined with little narrow closets in which the officers keep their clubs and overcoats when off duty. Across the inner end is an iron rail, and behind that a platform of one step surmounted by a desk, which serves as the justice's bench when court is in session. Justice David E. Harbaugh is about 50 years old, of medium height and looks like a mild copy of the late Admiral Foote. He has been a justice about two years. Before that he was a lawyer, real estate dealer and business man. He takes off his spectacles as he walks into the room, and opens the court at exactly 8 o'clock. He disposes of cases rapidly. The court is one of the cities great attractions. Country Michiganders, when they go to Detroit, make pilgrimages there and look upon it with pride, and many persons from other states pay a visit of tribute to its fame.

'Bijah is there no more, though he still lives, a hearty old man. His name is Abijah Joy, though he is said to be no relation to him of the Michigan Central Railroad. 'Bijah was at the Central Station for years, but he "talked too much with his chin," and he was transferred to the Ninth Avenue Station, where he is now the janitor or doorman. Those who, from his sayings, would look for a queer, quaint, bent, little old man, will be surprised to find him erect and vigorous, over six feet tall, with broad shoulders, deep chest, feet whose size would have rendered a fight between him and the grasshoppers, if he had walked around Kansas a few times during the late irruption, a doubtful battle; and arms and hands that might make good ground tackle for a lake steam boat.

Humor and pathos are twin brothers, and Lewis has the gifts of both. He has not had the advantage of a classical education, and his ordinary work lacks polish and technical perfection. But since his developement he has scarcely been away from home, and he does not know his own capability or the possibilities of his future. With broader experience, more culture, and hard work, Lewis may reasonably hope to make some permanent figure in the literature of the time.

The English Arctic Expedition.

INGENIOUS CONTRIVANCES FOR MEETING THE EXIGENCIES OF A POLAR WINTER.

[The London Times.]

Those who desire to ascertain to what a degree of perfection, organization, foresight and mechanical contrivance and adaptability can be carried, cannot do better than pay a visit to the Alert and Discovery. Everything on board, while admirably designed for the special purpose in view, has been so contrived as to be readily converted to some other use, so that space, weight and impedimenta of all kinds have been economized to the utmost. Each cabin, which is remarkably capacious, being about 6 feet long and 7 feet broad, is furnished with a handsome rack of drawers, which at night is transformed into a snug bed by simply placing a mattress on the top; the inmate is kept from falling out by a longitudinal sideboard. The cabins are lighted by circular skylights which have been cut in the deck, a few of the after cabin being lighted by inverted prisms inserted in the planking of the quarter deck. The doors of either side open into a corridor, which, being also lighted from above, forms a commodious mess-room for the officers, who will all dine together. The propelling shaft is telescopic at both extremities, so that when a collision with the ice seems imminent it can be easily disconnected from the screw by means of a system of leverage, and the screw hoisted on deck. The steam crab by which this latter work is performed is so arranged amidships that after the screw has been lifted it can be used to draw the vessel through the floe, or along the shore. For this purpose the ice-anchor, a rudimentary mass somewhat like an "S" in shape, with the lower hook broadened, is made fast ahead by a warp, and then pulled upon by the crab. In like manner, the four brass-tipped poles which support the tents at night will be serviceable as spars and yards to assist in propelling the sledges during the day. Even the chimney of the galley fire has been utilized, and made to pay a double debt. Embedded in the fore deck is a capacious metal basin, which, when the Polar latitude have been reached, will be filled with snow, and the galley chimney passing through it will condense it, by which means not only will a supply of water be obtained, but obtained exactly in the place where it is most required. Each ship has been supplied with a couple of Martin's self-canting anchors, which possess great holding power, and can readily be stowed away. They also economize wear and tear on the part of the crew; and the same purpose has been attained in another direction, by the application of Collin & Pigmy's patent reaping gear. It is expected that the expedition will be ready by the middle of May, but it will probably not sail until the end of that month. The Prince of Wales is expected to visit the ships before they sail.

SHADINES.

FIVE years since, after previous years of experience in the propagation and preservation of SHADINES, or young SHADS, we first introduced our fish to the American people. SHADINES are put up in hermetically sealed tin boxes, perfectly boneless, in a mild, pleasing, appetizing sauce, palatable to all, free from oil (so objectionable in sardines,) retaining only the natural richness of the Shad, and ready for the table at all times—for dinner, lunch or evening meal—by merely opening the box. Many parties having been deceived into buying American Club Fish alias Ocean Trout by there having been represented to them as being the same as Shadines, therefore, bear in mind, we are the original and only packers of SHADINES, and every genuine box has the letters H. & C., pressed on each box.

PONCE DE LEON.

The Favorite Resort of the Atlantese.

The Summer Season and Its Recreations.

Health-Giving Waters and Forest Shades.

Ponce De Leon! The name has become a part of Atlanta, and we no longer think of Florida at its mention.

Does the stranger ask, where and what is Ponce De Leon? Of course only a stranger would ask the question, for the citizens of Atlanta are all familiar with known by that name and within two miles of the city, or rather but a short distance outside of the corporate limits.

The summer season has come when pleasant drives are sought and cool resorts away from the dust and heat of the city. Of these is the most popular. The drive to it is delightful, over hill and valley, and through the stretches of woodland. Perhaps the finest, certainly as complete a can be seen on this drive as can be obtained on any other. The city with its splendid structures, its towering steeples, its beautiful suburban cottages, enchants the eye, and never loses its charm, though daily seen on the way to Ponce De Leon. It must be remembered, too that the medicinal virtues of this spring have been thoroughly tested, and its health giving waters rank among the best of the land.

PONCE DE LEON

HUNDREDS OF PEOPLE,

as the season advances, may be seen every afternoon at the spring, and wandering about the grove of magnificent trees surrounding it, or along the banks of the beautiful little stream that ripples and sings through the grounds.

HOW DO THEY GET THERE?

all these people, the question is often asked. Some ride, a few walk, but the masses go by the street-cars, which run from the centre of the city through the most beautiful of our resident streets, out of the corporate limits, through deep cuts and over bridges and high embankments, with fresh green-leaved forest trees on either side, on to a little depot within right of the spring. No wonder the cars are crowded. The pleasant ride, the delightful view of green trees and wild flowers, the insignificant fare all contribute to make the trip enticing and to fill the cars with men, women and children asking Ponce de Leon, its invigorating waters, its shady forests, and lovely grounds.

It was a great day for Atlanta when began to rattle over our pavements. The establishment of the street railway was an epoch in the history of Atlanta. We can well remember when the citizens of a street would protest against the running of cars upon it because of supposed injurious effects. Now there is not a street of the city whose residents would not pay handsomely to secure the benefits of the railway. Nor is it simply in its great convenience that benefit is had. The streets upon which the cars run are now the best in the city, and are kept in best repair. The roadway of the car is the track of all vehicles, and especially in the rainy season

Col. G. W. Adair has made

THE RAILWAY A GREAT SUCCESS,

and something of which our people are justly proud. For not only is the track good, and the equipment also, but the rapidity of travel is not surpassed over any street railway in the United States.

But we are wandering from Ponce de Leon. We set out to speak of it as the

of our population, as we have no park attractive enough at present, and will not have till we are able to afford money to spend lavishly upon one.

Ho then, for Ponce de Leon! Join the crowd, jump aboard the cars, and leave the dusty streets for an hour's enjoyment and delightful rest.

MERIWETHER COUNTY.

Home of Henry R. Harris, Jr.

On the first of May we left Atlanta on the West Point train. Getting off at Whitfield station, we rode seven miles to the home of Henry R. Harris, Jr. The ride was through a storm of wind, hail and thunder; but as our readers have had enough of this storm, we will not attempt to describe it, suffice to say we got through safe, and right happy did we feel when the stars came out, the winds lulled and the thunder died away.

Young Harris graduated a few years ago at Emory. Left college and immediately went to tilling the soil—would there were more like him. He married a young lady of Atlanta, who took to country life as readily as if she had been reared there—and to see her feeding hundreds of little chickens, or looking after the cows, or planting garden seed, or training roses in the yard, you would think she had been at it all of her life.

THE FARM

consists of sixteen hundred acres of splendid land. Three hundred acres are planted in corn, two hundred in cotton and sixteen in wheat. Mr. Harris expects to make three thousand bushels corn, eighty bags cotton and two hundred bushels wheat. He has a patch of one-fourth acre, near the house, which he manured heavily last fall and sewed in barley. This he has cut four times, using it as long food for his stock, and it is now growing, nearly ready to be cut again. He says this one-fourth acre of barley has been worth to him this season $100.

The residence is in a grove of large and beautiful oaks, magnificent in their native splendor.

HENRY R. HARRIS, SR.

We had the pleasure of meeting the above gentleman, his estimable lady and daughter Lena. The Colonel is a popular man and a good congressman. He is always to be found at his post, and is attentive to the interests of his constituents; in fact, to the interests of the whole State. The number of letters he wrote last session averaged twenty three per day. Atlanta owes him a debt of gratitude for the part he took in getting the appropriation for the custom house.

Mr. Harris thinks that the democrats in the next congress ought to confine themselves exclusively to unearthing the frauds and villanies of the radical party, and bring them before the people in campaign documents. By doing this the democrats will secure the next presidential race.

Mrs. Harris is an intelligent and cultivated lady. She has raised a charming family of sons and daughters. Some of her daughters have been bright lights in society at the National Capital.

THE FARMERS

are busy with their crops. If the seasons are good Meriwether will make an abundance of everything.

Our two days' visit was like a dream, and we regretted to leave such a charming country.

A $5,000 FIRE IN MARIETTA.

The Family Barely Have Time to Escape.

Marietta had a first class sensation Sunday morning, about three o'clock. The residence of Mr. John A. G. Anderson was totally consumed by fire. It seems that Mr. Anderson had been burning out his chimney, and some of the sparks must have settled in theroof.

When the fire was discovered it had made such progress that Mr. Anderson and his family, consisting of his wife, mother in-law and sister-in-law, barely had time to escape in their night clothes. All of the furniture, smoke house and outbuildings were destroyed. In a trunk which was burnt up Mr. Anderson had $2,500 in currency, and $600 in gold and silver. The greenbacks are gone, but the specie was found in a melted state. Through the exertions of the citizens, the adjoining houses were saved.

Mr. Anderson's loss in furniture and money will fully reach $5,000. The house was in the hands of A. M. Simpson, agent, and was insured for $1,500.

POLICE COMMISSIONERS.

Trial of Several Officers.

Board met at 8 o'clock last night. Present, Commissioners Dodd, Mahoney, Morris, Clarke.

The minutes of the last meeting were read. The case of Lieut. White was taken up, charged with taking a drink, and going to sleep on duty. The case was dismissed. Policeman Duke was tried for using improper language. Dismissed on the ground that he was officially reporting it.

Policeman Jacob Norris was tried for leaving his post, and was found guilty. Commissioner Clarke moved to suspend for three months. Commissioner Dodd to dismiss. The vote stood for dismissal, Dodd, Mahoney. For three months suspension, Clarke, Morris. The last two commissioners based their vote upon the belief that a violent affection of the boot caused the policeman to quit his post.

Board then adjourned to this afternoon, 4 o'clock.

Flowers.

It is surprising how the passion for the cultivation, and having flowers, has increased in our city. Go through pretty much any of our street, and many of the lots are seen growing glad with pansies, variegated hyacinths, the order of the verbena and heliotrope. Others again who have no lots, cultivate a few plants in their windows, like Tim Sinkinwater, clerk to the Cheerybee brothers, of Dickens.

The flowers which were scattered over the Confederate graves in the cemetery have withered, but a sweet memory breathes from their tombs. We hope some day to

THE CASEY TRAGEDY.

Full Report of the Trial of Jacob Stafford for the Murder.

The Full Testimony on Both Sides.

Scenes in the Court Room &c., &c., &c.

The superior court opened its criminal session yesterday with the trial of Jacob Stafford, for the murder of John Casey.

The particulars of this frightful tragedy are still fresh in the minds of our readers. The court room was crowded by negroes and whites during the entire day. The galleries of the city court room, where Judge Hopkins had removed for the purpose of this trial, were so well filled, that they had to be repeatedly called to order during the day.

THE WIFE OF THE MURDERED MAN.

The event of the trial was the evidence of the wife of the murdered man. She came into court attired in deep mourning, with a veil over her face. Mrs. Casey is a very handsome young woman, and when she seated herself in the witness stand a decided effect was produced upon the jury. She gave her testimony in a very clear and positive manner, although at times she seemed to be on the point of breaking down with grief. Every word she uttered, bore the impress of truth. Another sensation was the introduction upon the witness stand of John Purifoi, the alleged accomplice of Stafford. The prisoners severed when arraigned, and the State elected to put Stafford upon trial first, and were thus enabled to use Purifoi as a witness. As will be seen he tells a splendid story for Purifoi, and a very ugly one for Stafford, upon whom he endeavors to shoulder the entire crime.

THE PRISONER.

The prisoner Stafford is a large well favored black negro. He appears to be about 35 or 40 years of age. He was dressed with a neatness not usually noticeable in jail birds, Stafford has a fine looking countenance, and beyond a restlessness about his eyes, and a keen attention to everything that was going on, he seemed to be perfectly unconcerned.

THE ATTORNEYS.

The attorneys were Messrs. R. C. Jeffries and Howell Glenn for the defence, and Solicitor General and Mr. Hoke Smith for the State. The examination of the witnesses was conducted by the solicitor general for the state, and by Mr. Jeffrys for the defence. It is needless to say that the lawyers did their level best, and we are satisfied that no witness knew anything touching the case that was not brought out.

THE JURY—A NOVEL SPECIMEN.

Some delay was occasioned in the effort to get up a jury. A large number of parties were sworn, many of whom had formed an opinion, and some were opposed to capital punishment. Rather a rich incident occurred at this stage of the case. A German named Jacob Graif was sworn among the talesmen, and when asked if he was conscientiously opposed to capital punishment, honest Jacob responded that "He didn't exactly know, but he was willing to go with the balance of the jury." This reply didn't exactly conform to the law touching jurors, and many efforts were made to explain to Jacob the meaning of the question. Indeed, his honor spent a half hour in a vain effort to exlapin to Jacob what the question meant, but Jacob insisted, "Vell, Shudge, I goes mit der odder eleven." At last Jacob was permitted to stand aside by consent of both sides.

About half past ten o'clock the following jury was obtained and sworn:

G. A. Prathro, A. S. Talley, T. G. Healy, Jonas Selig, W. W. Belk, W. T. McCleskey, W. P. Stephens, William Gleeson, Hiram Edwards, J. R. Baker, J. S. Heard, W. A. Fuller.

THE INDICTMENT.

The prisoners were then arraigned upon the following indictment, which the solicitor-general read to the jury:

State of Georgia, Fulton County. The grand jurors selected, chosen and sworn for the county of Fulton, to-wit: Daniel Pitchford, foreman. Thomas C. Jackson, Harrison F. Leek, Gustavus A. Prathro, James A. Adair, William Kidd, Edwin J. Appling, Joseph Settles, Green Thompson, John J. Fain, Wesley D. Mitchell, William Stevens, Peyton B. Kilbey, James Boling, Wyly Rice, Philip House, James P. Kelly, John W. West, Morris Hirsch, William B. B. Richards in the name and behalf of the citizens of Georgia, charge and accuse John Purifoi and Jacob Stafford, of the county and state aforesaid, with the offense of murder, for that the said John Purifoi and Jacob Stafford, in the year of our Lord, 1875, with force and arms, with malice aforethought, did then and there unlawfully kill John Casey, by then and there cutting his throat and wounding him on the head with instruments unknown to the jurors, the said John Casey being then and there in the peace of said state, contrary to the laws of said state, the good order, peace and dignity thereof.

JOHN T. GLENN,
Solicitor General.
MARY J. CASEY,
Prosecutor.

March Term Superior Court, 1875.

To this indictment Jacob Stafford and John Purifoy plead not guilty.

MOTION TO SQUASH OVERRULED.

Mr. Howell Glenn objected to any evidence being introduced under this indictment upon the ground that the charge of crime was too vogue and indistinct. There was no proper description of the prisoner or of the instruments used to kill him. Judge Hopkins promptly overruled the indictment, saying it is one of the best ever known drawn for this offence.

The case was then opened by the introduction of the following witnesses.

THE EVIDENCE.

Below we give the substance of the testimony which was introduced both for the prosecution and the defence. What we give may be relied upon. Much immaterial and commulative testimony has been necessarily omitted, but in what is published the very language of the witness, where it is possible has been reproduced:

Evidence for the Prosecution.

DR. E. J. ROACH SWORN.

Witness is a physician; was so on 20th of last June, called to see John Casey at his residence on West Mitchell street at that time; was in basement of his store upon the floor: found him on the floor near some barrels with his throat cut and bleeding; noticed no other wounds at the time; found that he had bled nearly to death; the wound was a very ghastly one, extending nearly from ear to ear, and he was vomitin through it; witness also found a contused wound nearly on the top of his head, appeared to have been made by a contused instaument. (Here a bar of iron was shown witness, who said the wound on the head could have been made by it.) About the 30th Casey died: witness thinks partially from the effect of both wounds.

CROSS-EXAMINED.

The cut was made with some sharp instrument; was an excised wound; witness does not think it was possible to save Casey's life; several physicians saw him and did all they could for him; witness does not remember exactly what hour he saw Casey; thinks it was about eleven o'clock; stayed there two or three hours; Casey was unconscious during the whole time; witness found several policemen there when he arrived; witness had been asleep that night and think he was called up between 11 and 1 o'clock. Witness first endeavored to arrest the hemorrhage; he tied the arteries and sewed up the wound.

RE DIRECT.

Casey had been wounded about twenty minutes before witness saw him.

MRS. MARY J. CASEY, SWORN.

Witness is the widow of John Casey, deceased. At the time of the killing was living on Mitchell street; Casey was in the grocery business. Casey was killed on the 26th of January, 1875, very near 9 o'clock at night, in the basement of his store. On that night, as we were preparing for bed there was a rap at the door; all the lights except one had been extinguished; Mr. Casey was getting his money from the drawer to put in his pocket. Casey opened the door, and these two negroes came in; they passed through the store; witness was sitting in the back room with her foot on the stove; as they passed, following Casey to the basement, witnessed turned her head and recognized John Puri'oe; the other she did not know. The next witness heard was a tumbler fall; then one of the negroes came up and passed witnessed in the dark; she halted him but he did not stop; witness went down the steps, and stooping down, looked in; she saw a negro holding her husband down on the floor with his head pushed back, and his hand on Casey's throat. Witness thought then he was choking him. Witness ran back through the store screaming for help. When assistance came she went back and raised up his head and asked him where he was hurt. Casey was then conscious, for he took witness's hand and put it into the wound in his throat. Several doctors came in soon afterwards. Casey died about five o'clock Saturday afternoon.

Witness recognized John Purifoi as he came in the store. Casey took the light as they went down the stairs. The light was a railroad lantern. Casey went first, Purifoi followed him. The light was thus thrown go outside of the back door to get into the basement. Witness does not know the size of the store house. Witness was in a little back room which had been shut off by a partition. Witness does not know how much money Casey had that night. Does not know whether the negroes got any money or not.

Julia Tuesly, colored, and a negro man named Clark, were the first persons who got there after witness screamed and ran. No one was in the house but witness, her husband and two very small children when the negroes came.

CROSS EXAMINED.

Witness is not positive as to what time it was. Does not think it was as late as eleven o'clock. It seemed a long time before Dr. Roach arrived, but witness was very much excited. Witness does not know whether it was over fifteen or twenty minutes. It may have been twenty minutes. There was only one light in the store when the negroes arrived.

Witness's husband was at the money draw, for she heard the draw bell ring. The bell rang just as the negroes knocked at the door. Witness does not remember where the light was. Witness paid no attention to the negroes until they passed her. The light was then in Mr. Casey's hand. He was in front. Witness saw them as they turned down the basement steps. Witness saw Purifoi's side face. A few minutes after the glass fell, one of the men came back through the store. It was dark, and witness did not know him.

When witness looked in the basement she saw John Purifoi standing over her husband. She knew him. [Here a coat was shown witness, which she identified as the one Purifoi had on.] The children were then up stairs. When witness returned Purifoi was gone.

RE-DIRECT.

There was a fence around the rear of the store; witness did not see any knife; she saw the bar of iron after Policeman Glynn had picked it up; he showed it to her, but witness does not know where he found it.

JOHN PURIFOI, COLORED, SWORN.

Witness has been in jail two months; knows Jake Stafford; on the night of the killing was at old man Henry Banks', and Jake Stafford was with him; Stafford asked witness to go over to Casey's and get some whisky; witness said he had no money; Stafford told witness he had money and would pay for it; after supper witness and Stafford started out; as they started out Stafford picked up something in a newspaper and put it under his arm. When they got there, Casey said it was late, but would get it for them. When they got in the cellar Casey dropped a nickel. As he stooped down to pick it up, Stafford struck him on the head with the thing he had under his arm. Casey fell down and witness ran up through the store into the street. Witness started for the rolling mill, but got lost, and was arrested by policeman Bat Owens. Witness saw Stafford the next day after he was arrested. Has conversed frequently in jail with Stafford. Stafford has frequently offered witness money to say nothing about him. Jake wanted witness to say that he was not with witness that night; that Mrs. Casey did not know him; he tried to make witness say before Lee Williams that he was not with him; this witness has always declined to do; Jake and witness had a falling out because witness would not take this thing on himself; they were then put in different cells.

CROSS-EXAMINED.

Witness identified the coat as his own; had it on the night of the killing; witness did not get any blood on it, for he was not close enough; Stafford was in the habit of coming to Henry Banks' when witness was there, Jake said he came there to tell Mr. Banks about somebody who wanted to hire a cook; aunt Cone had not started to supper when Jake arrived; Jake went off after a short time, and witness went to sleep on a box; he was waked up for supper; Henry Banks lives right on the next block to the guard house; witness did not say in jail in the presence of William Hawkins that Stafford had nothing to do with it; witness never said Stafford was not there; witness did not tell William Davis, in jail, that Stafford was not with him; witness told Taylor Turner, in jail, that he was over at Casey's at the time, but did not tell him that he did the killing; Wise, the jailor, came to witness and told him to confess just how the thing was, and witness did it. When they went to Casey's, witness went on the right of Mitchell street, and Stafford on the left. Two or three hundred yards from Casey's house they joined together again. Witness passed a white man on the street, but did not recognize him. Witness also met two black men, but did not know them. There were no lights about Casey's house. There was a meeting at the brick church, but witness passed on by. The iron Jake struck Casey with was wrapped up in a newspaper. It was like that in court. Witness does not know where Stafford got it from. The first witness saw of it, was when Stafford picked it up from the side of the smoke house, when they left Henry Banks. Witness know that Stafford did not have a bottle wrapped up in the paper. (Here a bloody knife was shown to witness.) I never owned that knife. Did not have it in his pocket when he was arrested by Pat Owens and Mr. White. Witness did not own a knife at all at that time.

Picnics and Excursions.

It can be truthfully said of them that just now they are fairly under way. On Saturday, three large parties went out from the city, that of the First Presbyterian Sunday school being the largest, as it numbered something over one thousand persons.

The Atlanta Turnverein picnic comes off to day at West End. From the character of their entertainments much genuine fun and amusement is anticipated.

Then too to day there is an excursion to Toccoa Falls. The proceeds are to be applied to purchasing a parsonage for St. Paul's M. E. church, south. Tickets $1 50. As a matter of course for so charitable a cause, and so pleasant a trip, a large party will avail themselves of the opportunity of going.

On Thursday (13th) the Fifth Baptist Sunday school will have their picnic to Stone Mountain. It being a delightful place, and within a good distance, doubtless the attendance will be large.

Hamilton and James lodges Good Templars, and other temperance organizations, will picnic to Stone Mountain Wednesday (12th). A good time is anticipated; there will be a large crowd, nice music and dancing.

The Governor's Guards picnic and have target practice Friday (14th). This perhaps will be one of the most enjoyable picnics of the season.

Grand excursion and rope ascension over Toccoa Falls, Saturday (29th). Fare for round trip, $2.00. Doubtless hundreds will go to see the performance.

Making Preparations.

The people of Union Point are fully alive in relation to the meeting of the State Sunday School Convention meeting there on the 21st. At a meeting of the Union Point Sabbath school, the following committee were appointed to enquire in their neighborhoods, respectively, how many delegates can be accommodated at the approaching Sunday school convention:

For Greensboro'—The pastors of the different churches, Capt. W. H. Branch, J. H. Wood, Esq , Dr. Morgan and Mr. J. A. Griffin.

Washington road—Charlie Thornton and C. B. Mitchell.

Down the railroad—G. R. Carlton S. J. Harwell and R. H. Randal.

Smyrna road—J. H. Carlton and William Aiken.

Up the railroad—W. M. Hart and R. B. Smith.

Lexington road—R. J. Bunkley and W. F. Davant.

Union Point—J. B. Hart and others.

The people will entertain all delegates to the convention. Of course mere visitors cannot expect to be entertained. Let all who wish to attend secure their appointment as a delegate.

About three hundred delegates are already booked.

GEORGIA R. R. CONVENTION.—Quite a number of our citizens will take a 'vantage of the occasion and visit Augusta during the convention. A very deep interest is felt in the meeting about to come off, and aside from this, Augusta is a very pleasant city to visit, especially just now. We learn

CALLED MEETING OF COUNCIL.

Our Public Schools.

Appropriations for Streets and Relief.

Council met last night at 7:30 o'clock, at the office of the mayor. His honor, mayor Hammock, presiding.

The members of the council were all present except Councilmen Ellis, Flynn and Morris.

OBJECT OF THE MEETING.

Mayor Hammock stated that the object of calling council together was to state to the body that he had been informed by the aldermanic board that they could not agree to the amounts asked for, for the public schools, relief and streets.

COUNCILMAN BEATIE

said—If he did not feel assured that the people of Atlanta did not desire the maintainance of the schools as they now existed, he would not open his mouth to give expression to one word. He was thoroughly convinced that the citizens were not only satisfied, but yea, proud of their school system. Under difficulties, and with objections from some, the system had been inaugurated, and he conscienciously believed that if tested, the people would be found to be a unit in its support.

He could but believe it would be a folly to retrench and cripple the system. It caused a feeling of sadness to pervade his heart to think that the usefulness of the system was about to be impaired. He had been a beneficiary of the schools, and was well aware of the advantages to be derived. Much had been said of saving sa'aries. He had compared the salaries paid here, with those of other cities and they were comparatively low here. Was truly hopeful that the gentlemen of the aldermanic board on reflection would reconsider their action.

COUNCILMAN GOLDSMITH

stated that he was strongly in favor of keeping up the schools. He had no wish or desire to see them go down, and was disposed to do everything compatible with his duty to sustain them. He had conversed with the members of the aldermanic board, and he was convinced that they positively would not yield and go beyond $35,000. It only remained for the council to say what they would do.

His honest conviction was that $35,000 was a large amount of money to appropriate to the schools. With the appropriations from the state and the Peabody fund, the school fund would amount to $40,000 or more.

Taking everything into consideration, and viewing the surroundings of the matter, he candidly believed that the people would be satisfied with $35,000 for the schools. His conviction was that the schools could be kept up on that amount. He compared the amounts raised for school purposes in Savannah and Augusta, with that of Atlanta.

He did not think the city able to go beyond $35,000. To give more would necessitate the going outside of the city's income. His candid judgment was for the council to concur in the decision of the aldermanic board.

COUNCILMAN TURNER

said he could not perceive the reason why the aldermanic board desired to reduce the amount of appropriation for the public schools. He had no desire to spend the people's money unnecessarily. The question to be decided is, shall these schools be maintained. If there is no reason to prevent it, and we are able, it is our duty to give the money asked for, to run these schools.

COUNCILMAN RICHARDSON

said he was very anxious to appropriate $40,000 to the schools. He regarded them as being of great benefit to the city. The schools had increased the population of Atlanta more than any one thing. Again, no one could properly estimate the advantage and benefit conferred in the educating of the children of the city. It will make our boys better mechanics, better men and better citizens. If possible to do so, we should give the $40,000. If it is so that we cannot appropriate that amount, then we must secure what we can. He regretted that the aldermanic board was not present to participate in the discussion.

COUNCILMAN GOODWIN

said that he regretted that any question had been raised about the appropriation for the public schools. He believed that it was pretty generally conceded that the schools were very efficient. He wished that every man in Atlanta had read the admirable report recently issued by the board of education relative to the schools. In his judgment there was no department of the city government more important than the public schools.

There may be some who may think it best to cut down the salaries, but the entire city desired to keep up the schools. He hoped that it would not go out to the state through the press of the city, that our public schools had been crippled.

He was fairly and squarely opposed to agreeing to the action of the Aldermanic Board. If the public school system was crippled, let the responsibility rest where it belonged, and that was with the Aldermanic Board. That Board was invited here to night, why are they not here?

He was willing and for the sake of convenience would move, that the council appropriate $37,500 for the schools, and he would say, that he would never vote for one dollar less.

(Just at this time the members of the Aldermanic Board came in and took seats with the council.)

said that he still was of the opinion that it was best to compromise. In his judgment, if the council refused to comply with the decision of the aldermanic board, all blame would rest with the council. He desired to see the schools continue to prosper. Wished that the council could give $50,000 to them, but why talk of that which council is unable to do?

When the people of the city fully understand the situation of affairs they will be satisfied with an appropriation of $35,000. Councilman Goldsmith entered into statistics to show what the taxable property of the city would amount to, and the ability to appropriate.

ALDERMAN HAAS

said that in looking over a list of appropriations, he found that there had been various deductions. In fact there had been deductions in all the departments, except that of salaries and the fire department.

ALDERMAN MADDOX

said that he was as much in favor of sustaining the public schools as any one. He regretted that the council and aldermanic board were not a unit on the question of appropriations.

His honest conviction was that the sum of $30,000 was as much as the city was really able to give, but for the sake of conciliation and to have and maintain harmony, he had agreed to cast his vote to appropriate $35,000.

ALDERMAN WEST

said that if the city was able he would cheerfully and willingly vote for an appropriation of $75,000 to the publick schools. He proposed to be guided by the charter. He was ready to be taxed 2 per cent. to make the appropriation if it were allowable. He thought it best to be on the side of economy. He had practised it in his own business, and he proposed to exercise it in running the business of the city. He was animated by no captious feeling, on the contrary, were he convinced that $40,000 could be given, he would vote for it cheerfully. He hoped that the council and board would agree.

COUNCILMAN RICHARDSON

Said that he had no doubt but that the aldermanic board was animated by pure motives. He replied to Councilman Goldsmith, and said if there was a failure to compromise, the blame certainly could not be attached to the council.

COUNCILMAN GOODWIN,

Said, as a matter of course, there was no personal feeling about the matter. He was willing to vote for a reduction of two thousand five hundred dollars. The reduction would come from the salaries, and if the salaries were reduced competent teacherss would not be secured.

If necessary, by the charter, an extraordinary tax could be levied to keep up the schools, and his conviction was that the people would rather be taxed than to see the school system crippled.

He should vote against the aldermanic board, with the assurance that they fully favored the public schools, and only differed as to the amount to be appropriated.

said that he had but one feeling in the matter, and that was great interest in the schools.

Said he, Councilman Goodwin had moved, by way of a compromise, to reduce the amount $2,500; if the aldermanic board would agree to this amount, he believed that the board of education would make out on it.

MOTION PUT.

Mayor Hammock stated that Councilman Goodwin's motion to reduce the amount $2,500 would be put.

The result was as follows: Nays 4—Goodwin, Turner, Beatie, Richardardson.

Yeas 2—Garmany, Hunt.

(J. W. Goldsmith had agreed to pair off with W. D. Ellis, who is absent from the city.)

APPROPRIATION FOR STREETS.

The question then came up whether the appropriation for street and bridges should be $15,000, or the amount recommended by the aldermanic board (12,500) be adopted.

On motion of Councilman Richardson, the amount was fixed at $14,000.

APPROPRIATION FOR RELIEF.

Council agreed to $6,000, which was the amount recommended by the aldermanic board.

STREET TAX INCREASED.

On motion of Alderman Haas, the street tax was increased to $5 00.

$35,000 FOR THE SCHOOLS.

The aldermanic board had retired, but returned to the room.

On motion of councilman Beatie, council agreed to the school appropriation recommended by the aldermanic board.

ALL ABOUT HUMBUGS.

Is all the World a Humbug?

(Some bilious contributor hands in the following. He doubtless feels better by this time.—EDITOR.)

Aboard a West End street car a few days ago, was unintentionally listener to an unusually peculiar dialogue, in which were engaged some of our well known business men. Quoth one, rather seriously and somewhat impressively: "I'm of the opinion that this world's a humbug. Most businesses now-a-days are a humbug. Everybody generally appears to be dealing in humbugs, and, in truth, it seems that the greater the humbug the greater the success." Some consternation was created by these remarks among the unavoidable yet attentive listeners, and quite a warm debate followed, in which each business representative strove to vindicate his position and prove the legitimacy of his profession. But, mercy me! such revelations and exposures. O my! O dear! pot calling the kettle black was hardly a circumstance to it. I really think if there had not happened to have been composing the company a lawyer, a doctor, a real estate agent, an insurance agent, and a sewing machine man, I think I should have felt like a swoon. Imagine, for a moment, if you please, a frail, delicate little lady like me being tortured into the idea of fancying myself going to Dr. Cheek's office with a felon on my small toe, and to my mortification as well as consternation, say nothing of my surprise. Dr. C. safely remarks: Why, madam, your liver is seriously out of order, and unless you obtain immediate relief, it may result in an extreme attack of meningetis, chronic epizootic or hydrophobia, notwithstanding my earnest protestations and appeals against such possibilities. I am introduced for reference to Dr. C's disinterested (?) friend, Lawyer Smiles, who from none other than most charitable motives is prompted to entertain a peculiar interest in my case. Madam, says he, looking dignifiedly wise; for every effect there is a cause, a cause for joy and a cause for pain, a cause for mirth and a cause for sorrow, and there is a remedy for every injury sustained, and redress for every wrong done; from what cause does your felon proceed? Extreme modesty seemed at first to preclude the possibility of my being able to detail the circumstances under which I had received the injury, but slinging aside all feelings of bashfulness, and assuming that woman dignity that has been peculiar to the entire female portion of my family, from Eve down as near as I could recollect, I told him that by virtue of the rights and privileges under the 15th amendment, and the civil rights bill, an odoriferous dusky individual of elephantine proportions, had, on entering a car on which I happened to have taken passage, unceremoniously imposed one of his No. 18 brogans upon my pet, little No. one and a half, thereby producing my present agony of mind and understanding. Assuming an air of solemn indifference by rising from his chair, expanding his chest, running his fingers through his hair, first one side and then the other, with a look of marvelous seriousness, he relieves himself by exclaiming, "What a monstrous case of injured innocence, Madam." He immediately throws himself on his law library, consisting of some half dozen ancient volumes, to find authorities on right of action, liability for injury, etc., and there discovers that I have an unquestionably clear case for damages, and that I ought not to hesitate about commencing legal action. Just pay me $25 as retaining fee, and depend upon it, I will obtain a verdict in your favor that in amount will astonish you. As the story runs, too lengthy to detail, it surely proved astonishment; for by the uncertainty of the law's delays, and circumstances as yet unexplained, never was even the $25 received back, to say nothing about the verdict. The $25 was irrecoverably gone, like $50 once paid to a sewing machine agent on a machine, unanticipated pecuniary difficulties preventing me for some weeks being able to make further payments, by an artful hocus pocus dodge that some of these sewing machine men have got. My hard earned $50, and sewing machine too, became forfeited to a magnanimous sewing machine company; about which, however, I care but little, since I realize that it is highly probable that a southern made sewing machine, called the "Harper," will shortly be introduced, and that the price of one, including all the improvements and every attachment, will not cost over half what has to be paid for machines at present. A few things I want to accomplish: first, I desire to cultivate the acquaintance of an honest lightning rod man, a truthful insurance agent, with whom I can safely insure my life for at least enough to pay for subscription to the ATLANTA CONSTITUTION as long as I live, for I could not exist without the stock of information it daily affords me, and sufficient to pay for a decent interment of my remains, then I think I can die in peace, but not till then.

Respectfully,
OPHELIA CRUISE.

THE CLIFF.

There's a great gray cliff by the deep blue sea,
There was a maiden that loved not me.

To the great gray cliff came the sea to woo
With a love that was great and deep and true.

The sea come up and kissed the feet
Of the great gray cliff with kisses sweet.

The cliff said, "Never to thine embrace
Will I stoop, 'tis enough thou should'st see my face."

Said the sea, with a rippling smile, "I wait Till to my embrace thou art sent by fate."

And the great gray cliff, so the tale did tell,
Into the arms of the blue sea fell.

I wooed my love for many a day:
I have won my love, she is mine for aye.

BREVITIES.

—Unfortunate Ida Greeley! Who will ever recognize her as Mrs. Smith?

—Mrs. Fitch, nee Sherman, and Mrs. Sartoris, nee Grant, are both at present employed in the census service of the country.

—Smith, the husband of Ida Greeley, is described as a striking-looking person, with a border air about him which makes him conspicuous at the opera or an evening party.

—An Arkansas paper proposes this conundrum: We notice a great many triplets on the peace trees as well as twins? Is it significant of anything more serious?

—Mrs. Tilton says, in the published instructions to her coming boarders, "Wandering around in night clothes strictly prohibited. The pictures must stay where they are till morning.

—An Iowa paper tells of a smart wife who helped her husband to raise seventy acres of wheat. The way she helped him was to stand in the door and shake a broom at him when he sat down to rest.

—It is statistically computed that 100,000,000 nuts of various kinds are annually eaten in this country. Which fact the New Orleans Picayune thinks may account for the prodigious number of colonels.

—Madame Patterson Bonaparte has been to Europe sixteen times, and proposes, though ninety years old, to go again this summer. She says she has no idea of dying until she has rounded out her century.

—A four year old boy having passed through a severe squeezing process while riding on a horse-car with his mother expressed the relief he experienced when several seats next to him were vacated by exclaiming, with a long drawn sigh, "Mamma, I'd rather sit loose."

—At Pompeii they recently found a curious record. It was scratched on the stucco of the kitchen wall, and has been thus translated: "Lighted the fire, cooked his meals, and swept his house for him 28,000 times to the day, and he refuses to take me to the circus." Beneath this, in a different hand, is written: "Women are never satisfied."

—Baron Adolphe de Rothschild has recently become the happy possessor of a strange work of art—a pistol worth £2,000. The works of the little weapon are inclosed within the hilt of a Turkish cimeter, and the barral runs along the back of the blade. The hilt is of brass, inlaid with silver, after the style of the Renaissance, and evidently due to a Venetian workman.

—The first wedding among the foreign Mennonites, since coming to this country, took place in Barton county, Kansas, on the 28th of March. In the Mennonite ceremony the bride wears simple apparel. The couple enter, take their seats in front of the pulpit and listen to a sermon, which in this case was an hour and three-quarters long, and followed by the ceremony, which was read from manuscript and occupied half an hour. After passing through this ordeal and making five successive promises, including fealty to each other of every grade and kind, they finally are man and wife. Verily, the Mennonites are determined to be securely married, and no mistakes about it.

—Mrs. Jane Mitchel, wife of John Mitchel, the Irish patriot, on Friday was appointed administratrix of the personal estate of the deceased by Surrogate Veeder, of New York. In her petition Mrs. Mitchel states: "Said deceased died possessed of certain personal property of New York, the value of which does not exceed the sum of about seventy-five hundred dollars, as I have been informed and believe; that said deceased left surviving his widow, your applicant, and three children, to-wit: James Mitchel and Isabel Mitchel, all residing in the city of Brooklyn, and Mary, wife of Roger J. Page, residing in Louisville, Ky., all of full age, his only next of kin; that said deceased was at the time of his death an inhabitant of the county of Kings and city of Brooklyn. And I ask that letters of administration on the estate of said deceased be granted by the surrogate of the county of Kings to me."

The Symptoms of Liver Complaint are uneasiness and pain in the side. Sometimes the pain is in the shoulder, and is mistaken for rheumatism. The stomach is affected with loss of appetite and sickness, bowels in general costive, sometimes alternating with lax. The head is troubled with pain, and dull, heavy sensation, considerable loss of memory, accompanied with painful sensation of having left undone something which ought to have been done. Often complaining of weakness, debility, and low spirits. Sometimes many of the above symptoms attend the disease, and at other times very few of them; but the Liver is generally the organ most invoved.
